BCSP Editor There's plenty of variety in the menu of 34 games in Week Two of the 2024 black college football schedule.

Interestingly, just one of those games is an intra-conference affair.

That will be Saturday's 2 p.m. SIAC match up between Clark Atlanta, coming off a 45-42 shootout win over Fort Valley State last week in the debut of new coach Teddy Keaton, hosting Allen (2 p.m.) in its season's debut.

Just as interesting is that the game features Keaton and CAU junior quarterback David Wright, who together, it seems, transferred from Allen to the CAU after last season. Wright threw for 423 vards and seven TDs in last week's 45-42 win vs. FVSU. Cedric Pearl, the former Central State head coach, is the new head coach at Allen. This could get personal. A budding rivalry, perhaps.

Several games Saturday will feature rivalries in full bloom.

Virginia State is at Norfolk State (4 p.m., on ESPN+), Virginia Union is at Hampton (6 p.m., on FloFootball) and Winston-Salem State is at North Carolina A&T (7 p.m., FloFootball) in games of teams formerly all in the D2 CIAA. NSU is now in the FCS MEAC while Hampton and NC A&T are in the FCS Coastal Athletic Association (CAA).

Hampton and VUU have split in their last two tussles with HU winning 42-28 in 2021 and VUU prevailing in 2019, 36-17. There's rivalry here.

VSU has played NSU ten times since 2007 and has a 2-8 record vs. the Spartans. Last season however, Henry Frazier's VSU Trojans knocked off Dawson Odums' NSU Spartans, 33-24. This rivalry is still very much alive.

NC A&T has not faced WSSU in 14 years. The last time they met, the Rams defeated their bitter rival Aggies 21-14. Both teams have been waiting a long time to stoke this fire.

Five other games are 6 p.m. D2 SIAC vs. FCS SWAC affairs.

Miles is at Alabama State (ESPN+). Kentucky State is at Alabama A&M (SWAC Digital Network), Lane is at Jackson State (SDN), Tuskegee is at Grambling State (TheGrio) and Savannah State is at Southern (TheGrio).

In FCS matches, South Carolina State is at The Citadel (12n, ESPN+), nine-time FCS champion North Dakota State coming off a close battle with Deion Sanders' Colorado Buffaloes, hosts Tennessee State (5 p.m., ESPN+), NC Central hosts Elon (6 p.m., ESPN+), Morgan State is at Towson (6 p.m. FloFootball) and Prairie View is at Northwestern State (6 p.m., ESPN+).

But there's a catch.

Official rosters on the websites of the NFL's 32 teams include players listed on 53-man Active Rosters, 17-member Practice Squads, as Reserve/Injured (commonly known as Injured Reserve or IR), as Reserve/Physically Unable to Perform (commonly known as the PUP list) and as Retired.

Of the 35 black college players, 23 are listed on Active Rosters which means they will begin the season eligible and able to play in this week's games. Twenty-two (22) were on opening day active rosters in 2023.

The 2024 active list includes third-year safety Bryan Cook and thirdyear defensive back Joshua Williams of two-time defending Super Bowl champion Kansas City. The Chiefs kick off the season Thursday at home against Baltimore at 8:30 p.m. EDT. Cook, who played two seasons at Howard is listed as a starting safety on the Chiefs' depth chart.

SECOND TO NONE: Safety Bryan Cook (I.) and defensive back Joshua Williams (r.) begin their third-year playing in the secondary for two-time defending Super Bowl champion Kanas City Thursday vs. Baltimore

Williams, out of Fayetteville State is listed as a back-up cornerback.

Most notable on an active roster is rookie undrafted North Carolina Central defensive back Brandon Codrington, the only HBCU rookie to land on that list. Codrington was signed by the New York Jets, dazzled as a kick returner during the preseason but was traded to Buffalo last Wednesday when NFL teams cut down from 90 to 53 players. Codrington is listed on the Bills' depth chart for their game Sunday vs. Arizona as a back-up nickel back and primary kick returner.

The list of players listed as starters on opening day depth charts includes the most tenured former HBCU players in the league. It includes the dean of black college players in 12-year veteran Terron Armstead out of Arkansas-Pine Bluff for Miami and six-year veteran and former first round draft choice of Houston, right tackle Tytus Howard out of Alabama State. The short list of other listed starters includes San Francisco defensive tackle Javon Hargrave in his ninth year out of South Carolina State, Indianapolis defensive tackle Grover Stewart an 8-year vet out of Albany State and sixth-year punter Jamie Gillan out of Arkansas-Pine Bluff for the New York Giants.

Among moves made after cutdown day were fifth-year defensive back Bobby Price out of Norfolk State cut by Arizona and signed to Washington's active roster and former Alabama State defensive back Keenan Isaac waived by Tampa Bay and named to Carolina's active roster. Former North Carolina A&T offensive lineman Ricky Lee III was released by Carolina and signed to Minnesota's practice squad. Chicago offensive lineman Ja'Tyre Carter out of Southern was released and signed to Carolina's practice squad.

Perhaps the biggest surprise among seven former black college players on practice squads is undrafted Florida A&M rookie running back Terry Jennings with New England. Jennings led the Patriots in rushing in two of their three preseason games and is the only rookie to make the list. Practice squads are like second rosters to develop young players and give teams more personnel to help prepare for upcoming opponents. Players have to be promoted to the active roster to get into games.

Others named to practice squads after excellent preseason efforts were second-year wide receiver Chris Blair out of Alcorn State with Atlanta and second-year wide receiver/ kick returner Xavier Smith out of Florida A&M with the Los Angeles Rams.

Another five former black college players are on Injured Reserve. Howard rookie running back Ian Wheeler and second-year defensive end De'Shaan Dixon out of Norfolk

State, both have torn ACLs and are out for the season. Others on IR can be designated to return.

Former NC A&T running back Tarik Cohen announced his retirement after working out with the New York Jets.
